THE CORBOMITE MANEUVER

Captain's log, Stardate 1512.2. Crew are playing a game of Annoy Spock.

Object approaching at light speed. No visual contact yet.

Really?

It's a 107 metre cube. Mass 11,000 metric tons. Must be solid metal.

That's a density of just 8.979-

Solid metal, I say!

Let's blast it!

Your enthusiasm noted, Mr Bailey. Captain to the bridge, immediately!

I'll just room the ship with my shirt off a bit more first.

The cube won't let us pass. Suggest we reverse.

Plot a spiral course around it, Mr Sulu.

Reverse would be-

Boring!

Destroy the cube!

Radiation increasing.

Destroy it!

Radiation lethal.

Destroy!

Radiation more lethal.

Magic word, Bailey?

Captain's log. Cube destroyed. Advancing into further danger. Time to go get drunk with Dr McCoy.

Run drills while I'm gone. I want these men exhausted!

But-

Drills!

Allons-y!

New ship, sir.

I am Balok! I will destroy you! In 10 minutes!

He reminds me of my father.

Damn! Okay, Balok, you win this round.

We cannot break free. We are outplayed. Checkmate.

Not chess... poker!

Booya! I'm back in the game!

Go ahead, Balok. Our corbomite device will reflect your attack and destroy you!

Corbomite? What-

Shhhh!!

You win.

Break free!

We are overheating.

More power!

Engines read 2000° above maximum. That should not-

More power!!

Captain. Distress call from Balok.

I'll beam over, with McCoy and Bailey.

Request permission to-

Denied. If it's a trap, I want Bailey to be the one with me!

I am Balok. You saw my puppet before. It was all a test to see if you were peaceful.

You were peaceful all along? That'll annoy Spock.

I win! Two out of three!

Damn!
